Note: Following the citation information for each article, I have provided the SCImago rating in brackets. SCImago Journal and Country Rank (SJR) presents an “average prestige per paper” figure by combining both the number of citations issued by the journal as well as the influence of the individuals who cite from the journal. Scores among journals in a discipline are divided into quartile rankings (Q1-Q4), and Q1 denotes a journal in the top 25% of the distribution of all journals for a given subject category. For each article, the quartile ranking given reflects the journal’s ranking in the article’s publication year.
